RANCH CARETAKER FOUND DEAD WEDNESDAY NEAR PILOT HILL

Ambrose Randall, 59, caretaker on the old Luneman ranch, about three miles from Pilot Hill on the Salmon Falls road, was found dead at the ranch on Wednesday.

According to Coroner A. J. Orelli, Mr. Randall's body was found beside his bed in a position which indicated he had got out of bed when he collapsed. It was believed he had been dead about twelve hours when the body was found.

The coroner's investigation up to Thursday morning had not revealed any information concerning Mr. Randall save that he was believed to have been born either at San Francisco or at Fresno.

"Singspiration" Set By Young People

The young people of the Federated church are inviting the young people of the Episcopal Church to join with them in a half hour of song Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Fanning will be the pianist and Wilder Immel will lead the singing. These "singspirations" are very popular in many places and no doubt the Placerville folk will enjoy them also.

U. S. WATCHES CHANGES IN JAPAN

Roosevelt Arranges To Confer With Hull On Portent Of Tokyo Action

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Resignation of Japan's Konoye cabinet was believed in informed quarters today to mark a collapse in the two-month old "peace talks" between Japan and the United States.

The resignation also caused renewed speculation among officials as to the possibility of a Japanese move against Russia.

President Roosevelt arranged to confer at noon with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, presumably to discuss the Tokyo situation and its possible effect on this nation's position in the international picture.

Administration circles were concerned over what attitude the new Japanese cabinet might adopt toward American war shipments to Russia via Vladivostok, Soviet Siberian port. Ships to Vladivostok must pass through Japanese waters.

A cabinet session, which Mr. Roosevelt originally scheduled for this afternoon, was called off without explanation.

Officials here regarded the resignation as a victory for Japan's pro-Axis element in their struggle against Konoye's policy of attempting to improve relations with the United States.

The discussions between the two powers were opened two months ago at Premier Konoye's direct request to President Roosevelt. The Japanese premier, it was said, staked the future of his cabinet on the outcome of the talks, and his resignation could be taken to mean they were unsuccessful.

Well-informed quarters said that if a new cabinet of military and pro-Nazi elements is formed, it may indicate that Japan is ready to embark on a military campaign against Russia while the Soviet is (Continued on Page Three)

Armistice Day Plans Started

Bathurst Chairman On Arrangements; Faugstet To Arrange For Speaker

El Dorado Post No. 119, American Legion, instituted plans for the annual observance of Armistice Day, November 11, by the appointment of committee chairmen on Wednesday night.

George E. Faugstet was named to arrange for a visiting speaker for the exercises and Duncan Bathurst was appointed to be chairman of arrangements for the parade and program.

The co-operation of all civic and fraternal groups in participation in the parade and program is invited.

The post's Armistice Day dance will be held Monday evening, November 10, at the Shakespeare Clubhouse. The affair will be invitational as in the recent past, and bids to the dance may be obtained upon application to members of the post.

According to Cecil Barker, post commander, the plans for the post's annual civic dinner, on October 29th, were reported by the committee in charge as progressing on schedule.

GRIZZLY FLAT MINE WORKER FOUND DEAD WEDNESDAY AT BUNKHOUSE

Walter Smith Husted, 59, known to many friends as "Panama Bill," was found dead Wednesday afternoon in the bunkhouse at the Eagle King mine, near Grizzly Flat.

Mr. Husted had been at the mine eight days, Coroner A. J. Orelli learned. He complained Saturday of not feeling well and continued working until Wednesday noon, when he felt ill and said he thought he would lay down during the afternoon.

About three o'clock in the afternoon, George Campini, passing the bunkhouse, found him dead. The coroner has learned that Husted has a sister, Mrs. E. L. Keegan, of Poughkeepsie, New York, to whom word of his death has been sent.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Greenslate are the parents of a daughter, born Oct. 12, at Auburn.

JAP CABINET RESIGNS AS NAZIS CONTINUE MOSCOW ADVANCE

Full Implications Of Far Eastern Crisis Not Immediately Apparent; Russians Are Hard-Pressed In Odessa And Donets Sectors

By JOE ALEX MORRIS

United Press Foreign News Editor

German armed forces pounded toward Moscow today with repercussions that sounded "round the world," rocking the Japanese Cabinet from office and bringing closer a far eastern showdown.

The Nazi vanguard probably was 50 miles from the Soviet capital today. Reports indicated it had pounded forward another 10 miles in 24 hours of bloody fighting. London said Premier Josef Stalin may be forced to decide at any moment whether to stand and fight on the defenses of Moscow or to withdraw to the east to better defensive positions.

Full implications of the fall of the Japanese cabinet were not immediately apparent beyond the certainty that the day of Japan's showdown in her relations with the axis, the United States, Britain and Russia has been brought closer.

The Germans are known to have been putting pressure on Japan to quit dickering with the United States and Britain and strike a blow for her axis partners. There seemed no doubt that the Nazis were employing their military success around Moscow as a potent argument for Japanese action.

The Moscow situation as reported by the Russians was increasingly grave. Russian hordes were falling back slowly but constantly under Nazi pressure and a German breakthrough of apparent importance had occurred somewhere along the western front. Moscow said the military situation had "changed for the worse" and that the Nazis continue to pour new reserves into the fight.

The Russians, it appeared, have warned all foreign embassies in

Chayote Makes Bow To Vegetable Patrons

"Something new under the sun" on Placerville vegetable stands is the Chayote Squash, which looks very much like an over-sized and slightly faded green pepper.

They were available Wednesday at the Lynn & O'Neil Crystal Market, where Manager James Stein said they have been used for centuries by housewives in other countries.

Chayotes are used for seasoning in soups or stews and can be fried like egg plant, cooked au gratin with cheese or cooked "like any other vegetable, the way you like best," he said.

FORMER PARIS LEADERS FACE IMPRISONMENT

Pétain, Vichy Reports, Will Order Five Held For War Guilt Trials

VICHY, (UP)—German occupation in Paris today said that Emile Borel, famous scientist and former minister of the French navy, had been arrested. No reason for the arrest was given.

5 Face Prison

VICHY, (UP)—Well informed sources said today that Marshal Philippe Pétain had decided to order the indefinite imprisonment of Gen. Maurice Gamelin, allied generalissimo before the French collapse; three former premiers and a former interior minister pending their formal trial on a charge of war guilt.

The former premiers are Paul Reynaud, Edouard Daladier, and Leon Blum. The former interior minister is Georges Mandel.

All have been detained for many months near Riom, where a war guilt court is preparing evidence against them.

Pétain decided to announce his reported decision to the nation by radio this afternoon.

It was understood that he had ordered the five men concerned confined to the Poutrelle Fortress 2,000 feet up in the Pyrenees near the Spanish frontier.

Pétain was understood to have ordered that Guy Le Chambre, a former air minister, should remain at the Bourassol prison pending disposition of his case.

He was said to have deferred action on the case of Pierre Cot, another former air minister, who is now in the United States.

Informants said that Pétain made his decision after consulting members of his inner cabinet.

There was no right of appeal from the decree.

The outstanding event in the Shakespeare Club program for the immediate future is the annual club luncheon, at one o'clock on Tuesday, October 21, at the clubhouse.

On Tuesday of this week, the current events section of the club was addressed at the clubhouse by State Senator H. E. Dillinger.

On Tuesday, October 28, the regular garden section meeting will be held and this time will be at the residence of Mrs. Harry Reaside, at Lotus, in accordance with a recent agreement of the section members to meet at the homes of members of the section.

Looking further ahead, the annual bazaar of the club will be held at the clubhouse on Thursday, December 4.

For the luncheon this coming Tuesday, the club will have as its guest speaker Carol Hall, curator of the pioneer museum at Sutter's Fort, whose father was a merchant in Placerville in pioneer times.

Other distinguished guests will include Mrs. J. B. Morehead, of Marysville, northern district president of the state federation; and Mrs. Don Bass, of Roseville, Tri-County Federation president.

The occasion is open to club members and their guests and a special musical program will be given. Mrs. E. K. Fowler is general chairman for the luncheon and the program has been arranged by Mrs. M. P. Bennett, Mrs. Charles Schaeppi, Mrs. Robert Weidman and Mrs. Percy McNeil.

The meeting of the current events section had Mrs. R. M. Lutz, chairman, in charge. Senator Dillinger's address reviewed some of the efforts being put forward by official and semi-official agencies and groups to anticipate the changes in national and international economy which may be expected at the expiration of the current period of industrial stimulus to the end that unsatisfactory conditions associated with the past depression may be minimized if not eliminated.

Mrs. Philip Volz, the club president, has announced the appointment of the following committees in connection with the plans for the bazaar on December 4: Mrs. John Nelson, general chairman, and, Delicatessen, Mrs. E. MAJOR STRIKES IN DEFENSE SETTLED

Tank And Ship Production Resumes; 250,000 May Lose Auto Factory Employment

By UNITED PRESS

Termination of the two principal defense strikes removed obstacles to the production of ships and tanks today but new disputes of a minor nature hampered output of steel and aircraft parts.

On the non-defense front, 250,000 automotive workmen were threatened with displacement by curtailment of production and 100,000 more faced layoffs unless a Cleveland strike is settled; a 16-day strike at eight Pittsburgh hotels was settled; and a musicians' dispute in Pittsburgh resulted in an edict ordering sustaining orchestras off the Columbia network.

The three-day-old strike of 400 AFL welders, halting production of $150,000,000 worth of orders for the navy and maritime commission ships, at the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp., Pascagoula, Miss., ended last night.

The company, employing 3,000 other AFL workers with whom the welders were in disagreement, announced that operations would be resumed today after a federal conciliator revealed that a return-to-work agreement had been reached. Strikers agreed to go back to their jobs pending negotiation of their grievances by the national defense mediation board which had called for "immediate" restoration of production.

Yesterday, the CIO United Automobile Workers ended a week-old strike at the Hillsdale (Mich.) Steel Products Co., permitting restoration of work on 70 per cent of the transmission parts for all tanks and combat vehicles at the parent concern. (Continued on Page Three)

Debt Limit Going Up

"No Question" About Need For Increasing Figure, Says Treasury Secretary

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau said today there was "no question" that the federal debt limit would have to be raised considerably above the present limit of $65,000,000,000.

The debt now is $51,554,945,436. Morgenthau said the present government borrowing program necessitated by defense preparations was "so huge, so immense" that the federal debt would increase even more rapidly, particularly if the treasury carries through a plan now under study to do all the borrowing for federal agencies.

Morgenthau said the treasury was studying a plan whereby individual government agencies would borrow from the treasury instead of going into the open money market for loans. He cited as a specific example $112,000,000 in United States housing authority securities which come due next month.

Peggy O'Toole, Irish-American girl, after breaking her engagement to George ("Jimmy") Meredith, is badly injured in an accident. The doctors say she may never walk again. Jimmy begs her to renew their engagement, but she thinks his proposal is prompted by pity so she refuses him. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Greer, take her to Paris to see a specialist. One day while sitting in the park in her wheel chair, she strikes up an acquaintance with a handsome young Italian officer, Lieutenant Paul Rimini. The following evening, he brings her a scarf she lost, asks her to let him take her to Montmartre and, over the protests of her companion, Miss Tucker, sweeps her up in his arms and carries her away.

CHAPTER XXIII
PAUL leaned his arms on the table. "In your country what would they do to me?" "Hang you, certainly!" Peggy laughed. "Kidnaping is a serious crime!"

"But wouldn't they let me off if you pleaded for mercy?" he said, making a long face. "Would you let them hang me for showing you a good time? You are having a good time, aren't you, Signorina Peggy?"

She smiled and nodded. She looked down over the city. They were on the open veranda of a little restaurant high up on Montmartre. To reach it they had gone by horse-drawn carriage. Now, Paul had carried her in his arms. Below them, the lights of the city twinkled. Above was the cold clear radiance of the moon and stars.

"The moon—the stars—Partial," Peggy quoted Paul. "You do like it then?" His dark eyes held hers.

"I love it!" she said sincerely. "Once upon a time, I dreamed of coming back to Paris—I spent a while here with my parents when I was a child." She paused. "Well—I did come back—but until tonight—it has not been the gloriously romantic adventure I had hoped for. To come to seek the aid of a surgeon is not exactly a holiday trip," she sighed.

"Nevertheless," Paul's hand closed over hers—"there is no reason why you shouldn't have some fun while you are here. I should like to help you enjoy your stay as much as possible—I mean as long as my leave permits."

PEGGY gently drew her hand away. "You have already made my stay more enjoyable, Paul. After a moment, she asked, "How long will you be on leave?"

"This is the first I've had in two years," he told her. "So they have given me two months. Two months! It seemed forever last week, but now—" His fingers were seeking hers again. "Peggy—tell me—maybe it is none of my affair—but is there somebody back in America?"

She bit her lip. Then she said, "Aren't you—running things somewhat Paul? After all, you've known me only two days."

"Two days or two centuries—what does it matter?" He shrugged. "To like a person is not simply a matter of slow reason—it may come as suddenly as lightning." He hesitated. "You still haven't answered my question—there some one waiting back home?"

"I'm—not sure—he's exactly waiting."

"But you are exceedingly fond of him? There is such a one?" Peggy lowered her eyes. "I—yes," she whispered. "There is."

Paul released her hand and signed "I know it—I mean I was—'raid of it."

She laid her hand on his sleeve. "But you and I can still be friends, Paul."

He smiled at her. "Friends?" For two months you and I shall be most excellent friends—I hope!"

SOON afterwards, Peggy said it was time to leave. As Paul carried her out and lifted her into the open carriage, a fiercely mustachioed gendarme stepped up to him and tapped him on the shoulder. There followed a conversation in French so swift and so animated that Peggy was unable to follow it.

She was startled when the policeman stepped into the carriage with Paul.

Paul smiled at her apologetically. "He wanted to take us both to the commissariat. But I persuaded him that we had better take you at least back to the hotel."

"But what does he want?" Peggy asked, in bewilderment. "You told me that kidnaping is a serious crime in your country, did you not?" Paul laughed. "Evidently your grandfather—"

"Grandfather?" she cut in. "Why—but this is absurd!" "Not so absurd to our friends," said Paul nodding toward the gendarme, who was looking very grim.

A little later, as they drew up before the hotel, several other gendarmes rushed up to the carriage. They all started talking to Paul at once, gesticulating angrily.

Paul, after arguing patiently for several minutes, but apparently without much success, suddenly shook off the hand that one gendarme had placed in his sleeve and, picking Peggy up in his arms, descended from the carriage. The gendarmes swarmed about him still talking and gesticulating as he carried her into the hotel.

Fortunately, the lobby was almost deserted at that time of night. Nevertheless, Peggy was somewhat distressed by the commotion they were causing. The night clerk and several loitering guests were looking on with interest.

THEN, to her relief, she saw her grandfather hurriedly approaching with her wheel chair. He had evidently been anxiously waiting in the lobby. "Peggy!" he exclaimed. "You're all right?" Then to Paul, "I demand an explanation of this young man!"

Peggy caught hold of his lapel. "Now, grandpa! He was only being nice to me!"

Paul carefully placed her in her chair, then turned to Mr. Greer. "Signorina Peggy is kind to defend me, but I confess my fault, sir. I did make off with her."

"But we had such fun, grandpa!" Peggy put in. "Seeing Paris in the moonlight!"

"And while you were indulging in this foolish nonsense," her grandfather fumed, "this whole hotel—and the police—have been out in a frenzy! When Miss Tucker came downstairs with the news that you had been abducted by a strange young man—"

"By the way, sir, who are you anyway?" "Lieutenant Paul Rimini—at your service, sir," Paul clicked his heels.

"I'm sorry that we upset everybody, grandpa," Peggy said meekly. "We didn't mean—"

One of the gendarmes was plucking at Mr. Greer's sleeve, asking him a question. "No!" the old man said impatiently. "Drop the whole thing! I'm sorry to have put you to so much trouble—and thank you."

When the police had departed, he turned to his granddaughter. "Well, Peggy," he said with a sigh. "I suppose I must forgive you. Ready for bed now? It's been a long day for you."

She nodded and yawned. "I am a little sleepy," she said happily. "Good night, Paul—and thank you for a lovely time!"

"Pleasant dreams, signorina!" (To be continued.) (The characters in this serial are fictitious.)

This week's meeting of the Soroptimist Club, on Wednesday at Hotel Raffles, was a signal occasion in the history of the Placerville organization when Lessie Hancock, national director for the southwest region of the association, was a visitor.

JIM MORTON WINS CONTRACT TO REMODEL HOSPITAL AT YUBA CITY

James P. Morton, Placerville contractor, has recently been awarded a contract by the Board of Supervisors of Sutter County for remodeling of the Sutter County hospital, at Yuba City.

The work will cost Sutter County about $6,700.

Within recent months, Mr. Morton has completed a $12,000 one-story office building in Yuba City for Gene Morrison, who erected the building as a business investment.

The structure, of reinforced concrete with a stucco exterior, is furnished and fitted inside with every convenience in modern building and, judged by pictures, is a real credit to Mr. Morrison and to the contractor.

At Seattle, the AFL national convention re-elected President William Green to his 18th consecutive term, but refused to re-elect as a vice-president George E. Browne, president of the Theatrical Stage Employees, now on trial on extortion charges in New York. Elimination of Browne was interpreted as the beginning of a crusade against alleged labor racketeering.

U. S. Watching In Far East

engaged in a struggle against Germany in the west.

A change in the post of foreign minister would give the most concrete indication of the future course Japan will follow. The present foreign minister, Admiral Toyoda, is a moderate and his replacement by a strong army man would support predictions that Japan is ready to embark on a military campaign against Russia.

Informed sources believed the apparent collapse of the U. S.-Japanese talks resulted from the inability of the Japanese to settle their own internal quarrel between the war party and the moderates. American diplomats were left without an assurance that the Japanese with whom they dealt could make an agreement binding on the Japanese empire.

Friends report they understand that Lieut. Tom Caswell, who recently won his wings in the Army Air Corps, has been assigned to duty in the Far East.

MILLING TO START SOON AT MADRE DE ORO, NEAR EL DORADO

The erection of a steel head frame eighty feet high has been completed at the Church gold property three miles south of El Dorado by the Madre de Oro Gold Mines, Inc., a Sacramento paper reports.

A 200 horse-power electric hoist and ten drill compressor are being installed and milling is scheduled to commence before Christmas, provided no unusual difficulty is experienced in securing operating supplies.

The vertical three compartment shaft, 1200 feet deep, is stated by the management to be in perfect condition. Ten levels are open for mining and old stopes are said to be full of payable ore. Three strong veins are exposed and an extensive virgin area remains to be explored.

Equipped with 20 1,150-pound stamps, two ball mills, classifiers, jigs, fourteen flotation cells, thickener, filter, concentrating table, amalgamation barrel and other units, the mill is designed for treatment of 350 tons of ore daily. The company has spent more than $100,000 on development and equipment of the Church mine.

Mrs. Forrest Riley of Corcoran is president of the Madre de Oro Gold Mines, and Mrs. Hazel Mitchell the secretary-treasurer. W. J. Loring is managing director and supervising engineer.

The Church mine and other mining properties owned by the corporation covers 113 acres on the slate formation of the Mother Lode. Discovered in 1850 by Mexicans, the Church was long noted for its yield of rich gold quartz, and 60,000 to 70,000 tons of ore valued at $27 per ton are said to have been produced by one of the old companies operating the property.

MEN'S CLUB HEARS REPORT ON SACRAMENTO GOOD WILL INDUSTRIES

The regular meeting of the men's club of the Federated Church was held Wednesday evening with the Rev. Harry Richards, of Sacramento, as the guest speaker.

The product of the labors are sold and the proceeds returned to the workers.

The Good Will Industries are engaged in the rehabilitation and repair of clothing, furniture and other articles which are no longer suited to use and invite gifts of these materials in the support of their work. Those of El Dorado County who may wish to contribute in this way to the support of the Good Will Industries may arrange to leave their materials with the Rev. J. R. Rudkin.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

According to popular conception, most farmers are dyed-in-the-wool pessimists who look upon each sunny day as a sure omen of stormy weather to come. But popular conceptions are often erroneous.

Actually, farmers are incurable optimists. They couldn't possibly stay in the farming game, year after year, otherwise. And the slightest upturn in general economic conditions is always quickly reflected in farming operations.

Currently, a general improvement in the demand for farm real estate is evident from reports on land sales by the Federal land banks and the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation. Inasmuch as these institutions hold approximately 40 per cent of the total farm mortgage debt of the United States, any trends in their collections, foreclosures, or land sales are significant.

During the first half of 1941, these banks and the Corporation sold 23 per cent of all properties available for sale, as against 20 per cent in the corresponding period of 1940.

Of particular interest is the substantial improvement in the demand for farm lands in areas long subject to distressed agricultural conditions: in North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and other States in the Great Plains. The proportion of available farms sold in South Dakota and Nebraska during the first half of '41 nearly doubled the corresponding proportion sold during the first half of 1940.

Significant, too, is the fact that the great proportion of farms are being sold to farmers living in the same communities in which the farms are located; consequently, the buyers, as a rule, are thoroughly familiar with local factors having a bearing on the value of the properties. Farm tenants, particularly, have constituted a strong element in the current demand for farm land. About 50 per cent of the farms have been sold to farm tenants.

The Bureau of Agricultural economics reports that a healthy condition in the current situation is the fact that the increased activity does not reflect a price boom such as occurred during World War No. 1. Instead, it is recovery of the active demand for farm land that has returned after a decade characterized by a slow market for farm real estate. Most observers report that except in isolated instances the prices at which farm lands are being sold have not materially advanced. The Federal land banks and the Farm Mortgage Corporation have not followed a practice of raising prices on farms for sale but have continued to sell them at prices based on the long-term outlook for agriculture and at prices reflecting their true value in the market.

Other indications of improved conditions in farm real estate, according to the Federal bureau, are the downward trends in real estate acquisitions and foreclosures. Records of the Farm Credit Administration covering the past year show fewer foreclosures of mortgages, increased volume of payments of the principal and interest on mortgage debts held by the government, and generally increased sales of farm real estate. Other creditors in the farm mortgage field have experienced improved conditions. One large life insurance company, for example, indicated in its annual report that despite intensive efforts

About two hundred were in attendance, including officers and members from Auburn, Colfax, Nevada City, Dutch Flat, Georgetown, Grass Valley, Truckee and Penryn chapters. Grand officers came from many parts of the state.

Mrs. Dora Crawford left Tuesday for Placerville on her way by Oakland and Salinas where she will visit with relatives and to Long Beach where she will attend the Grand Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star as a delegate from Mountain Fern Chapter No. 62, on October 20 to 24 inclusive. She was to be accompanied on the trip by her daughter, Mrs. Hattie L. Davey of Placerville. Mrs. Crawford states that 51 years ago she was delegate to the Grand Chapter held in San Francisco. The Grand Chapter then was only a small roomful of Grand Officers and delegates, and this year at the grand session it is expected there will be several hundred grand officers and delegates in attendance.
